INTRODUCTION

Writing has always been regard an important skill contributing to students' language learning (Sari, 2019). Teaching ELT Writing is a text that can be used for English language teacher education programs and those ELT teachers interested in furthering their own professional learning. Al Sharaeai (2012) identified students opinions regarding the same matter.

Therefore, the development of writing skills always exists in the English classroom along with the other three skills. However, when writing is not chosen to be the skill to focus on in the lesson plan, English teachers may assign the students to practice writing through a journal to be submitted regularly, for example, it is written after the completion of a lesson or a unit of a textbook (Widiati, Rohmah & Furaidah, 2014).

Writing has an important role for students when learning to use language (Sari, 2018). One of the writing skills that students can learn is essay writing. An essay is a paper that describes a problem or personal perspective that is explained in a direct and cursory manner. In general, an essay that is easy to understand is usually an opinion with the help of argumentative points. The more trained we are in writing essays, the better our ability to write other forms of writing such as: academic writing, scientific writing, argumentative essays, or various types of English texts (Abbas, 2017). 'Essay writing ability' refers to the participant's ability to write essays of different lengths exhibiting attention to a set of criteria. These are 'Mechanics', 'Content', 'Style', 'Logic', 'Grammar', 'Vocabulary', 'Diction' and 'Rhetorical aspects', including organization, cohesion, unity, topic, occasion and appropriateness to audience (Jahin, 2012). The incompleteness of the sentence indicates that the students do not fully understand the use of adjectives in English (Sari, 2019). Surely many people are also difficult when they want to write an essay. The difficulty of students in writing essays can be influenced by several factors such as: lack of ideas, low motivation to write essays, lack of grammar or vocabulary skills, and rarely practice writing in spare time (Abbas, 2017). The teacher gave a list of difficult words before the teacher delivered the text to the students' (Sari, 2016).

Lack of ideas is one of the difficulties in making an essay. When we lack ideas, cheating arises by copying other people's papers without quoting. We know that writing an essay is not just about writing ideas, but also organizing words. They suggest a tendency by us to rely on the use of quotations in their essays and use sources to present knowledge or arrangement of ideas (Ramoroka, 2014). With quotation, we will not be considered as someone who steals the ideas of other writers on their own behalf. Low of motivation is a barrier to how difficult we want to write ability an essay. The essay has low prestige being a student genre, not one that disciplinary experts have to write. Their understanding of the exact nature of the essay in their discipline may therefore be implicit and vague (Wingate, 2012).

Limited grammar and vocabulary skills also make us unable to write essays. Grammar is also very important for good essays. This will make the essay a neat wording. Vocabulary serves a key the requirement for ideas to flow in the right ground. In this regard, many researchers in the field attempt to identify the reason behind such a difficulty (Belkhir & Benyelles, 2017). To solve those problems, students said they usually ask for feedback from teacher, do editing and revising, outlining, ask friends for being prove-reader, and read for improving their vocabulary.

(Rahmatunisa, 2014). English language and writing teachers must pay attention to errors which result in illogical or confusing written essays (Mweru Mugambi & Nicholas Achoda, 2020). It is needed to establish whether revision is indeed a problem; and if it is, essay should also deal with editing and revision strategies. (Jacobson & Reid, 2010)

Based on those phenomena, it is significant to solve the problem by using effective approaches in teaching essay writing to the ELT students. The researcher is interested in using process writing approach to teach writing ability especially in teaching essay writing. Then finally, we can never write an essay if we don't practice it every day. All will be in vain when the science of writing is not applied every day. One day our writing will fade and disappear instantly in our minds because we do not get used to it. The more accustomed to it, the more you can improve the quality of your essay.

To that end, we improve all our writing abilities in grammar and vocabulary and motivate ourselves to practice ⁶ or creativity every day in making essays. In designing courses that use essays (term papers) as part of an assessment strategy, it would be extremely useful to know how students as novice writers make use of source texts to generate the eventual essay. (Robertson, 2014). Continue to write essays as a means to practice our writing ability skills.
